<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Have you ever been deceived by chocolate? 2. Well it's not chocolate that's lying to you. White chocolate is. 3. The first form of chocolate was a drink called xocolatl created around 1900 BC by the Mayans and Aztecs 4. Years later, in 1847, Europe created the first solid form of chocolate, which was not liked for it's bitter taste 5. Luckily, Daniel Peter sweetened it in 1874 by adding milk 6. Later on, the controversial white chocolate was created in the 1930's from excess cocoa butter 7. So what exactly makes chocolate? 8. Well chocolate is made from cacao beans and any of it's derivatives 9. Theobromine is a chemical that can ONLY be found in the cacao bean 10. Therefore, it's safe to say that chocolate must contain theobromine to prove that it derives from the cacao bean. 11. But who is classifying white chocolate as chocolate? 12. Well the Food and Drug Administration. 13. The FDA only classifies white chocolate if it follows rule 163 which is to have at least 20% of cocoa butter, since it doesn't use any cocoa powder, chocolate liquor or any other cocoa solids 14. But companies are finding ways around rule 163 by deodorizing the amount of cocoa butter by adding lecithin and other flavorings, like vanilla 15. According to the official Hershey Company website, their White Chocolate with a Creamy Meltaway contains no theobromine 16. If it were to really have any traces of the cocoa bean like the mandatory 20% wouldn't it contain theobromine? 17. The only reason the FDA made rule 163, was because companies would use vegetable oil instead of cocoa butter. 18. They would use 'cocoa powder' that was actually made from a pulverized fruit of a 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. chocolate/raisin cookie meme <small>or sponge raisin cookie meme</small> 2. chocolate doing a handshake with milk, gets candy hates white chocolate baby meme 3. xocolatl drink, painting of aztec and mayan chocolate tree 4.
